WINDMILL MADE INTO CHURCH

Novel House of God That Servee for Twelve years ago, when the vil-lagers living off the border of Reigate heath, Surrey, England, had no place of worship nearer than the parish church, a service was held in a school-room close by and was so well at-tended that the authorities looked around for a suitable permanent build-the question, but there stood on the heath the remains of an old mill, a picturesque feature in a beautiful bit of landscape. Inspection showed that once the rars were got rid of a comparatively small outlay would furnish and render the mill fit for public worths.

ship, and soon it was opened as the Chapel of the Holy Cross. The interior of the chapel arouses interest. Four buttresses, four feet thick by six feet in height, serve as thick by six feet in height, serve as reats for two massive beams which cross each other in the center and support an upright shaft cracked with age and strongly bound with fron bands. The buttresses make four natural alcoves. The entrance door stands in one, and immediately opposite is the altar; the harmonium is placed in a third, and the beliringer sits close beside it and rings his bell; the fourth is occupied by the congregation. The rent of this novel church is only 25

ANTIQUITIES MADE TO ORDER.

witzerland Proves Itself in No Way Behind the Rest of the World in This Connection.

Switzerland will have an additional attraction this season for the tourists. The one hundredth anniversary of the struggle for independence will be celebrated, and the thrifty inhabitants celebrated, and the thrifty inhabitants of the little republic," says an American tourist, "always watchful for the coin, are making great preparations for the various celebrations. Aside from the pageant and other civic festivities, they are laying in a stock of historic souvenirs, for which they know there will be a ready market. An Innsbruck paper says that one of the popular manufactured antiquities is the Swiss flag of a hundred years ago. A new one is made to resemble is the Swiss flag of a hundred years ago. A new one is made to resemble a centenarian by a process which in-cludes fading the colors in the sun-bespattering it with tallow and laying it in the granary, where the mice soon give it the necessary lattered ap-perrance. Finally it is subjected again to the rays of Father Sun, is mounted on a worm-eaten, broken staff, and is then ready for the English or American tourist in search of centennial trophies."

Saving an Ancient Fresco.

It is not only in this country that church restorers are allowed to do church restorers are allowed to do much as they like. An interesting story comes from Hal. The church is under restoration, and the workmen came across traces of a fresco. Its existence had been unknown, and according to the plats the plaster was to come away. Fortunately a townsman knew a process by which the plaster could be taken off intact on canyas. He obtained permission to make the experiment and it has been carried out He obtained permission to make the experiment, and it has been carried out with success. He is said to be now the possessor of a valuable fifteenth-century painting. The Brussels museum authorities have learned of the existence of the painting, and they consider the alleman. are endeavoring to prevent the aliena-tion of this interesting work of the middle ages.—London Globe.

Robins' Curious Nesting races.

The two robins which have built their nest in the cover of a meter at the Market Drayton Electric Light works have many precedents in the choice of unconventional nesting places A year or two ago a robin's nest was built on a book shelf in a might nursery at Chiselhurst which was occupied without interruption by a nurse and child. Four eggs were laid, and two young birds were hatched out. Two other robins built their nest on the axie of a colliery wagon in daily use at Seghill, in Northumberland. Among other curious recent nesting places have been the breast pocket of a scarecrow at Ashbourne, a nail box in a village forge, the skeleton of a crow, and the rifle range butts at Ticehurst, Sussex.—Westminster Gazette.

Population of H-

Population of H.—I.

Hecause the News and Couries stated the obvious conclusion, from the fact that water pipes do not freeze in lades, that there are as plumbers in that region, some of our contemporaries are vilifying it in their marrow, purtisan way, in spite of this we now declare that the amount of gas constantly escaping from hades shows that what plumbers who may be there are apprentices.—Charleston News and Courier. It contains a man and a church stee-ple. The man and the woman are very poor, they have been digging po-tatoes because they need them to live on. The potatoes look very small. Just at sunset they hear a bell ring, it is the Angelus, it means they must pray. So they bow bell heads and pray for bigger polatoes.—Lippin-cott's.

Talking All Languages.

It pays to be a good, waiter in the old country and a man will, often remain a lifetime with one house and even at one table, commanding the respect of these he serves. He always speaks four or five languages, and it is astonishing to the American abroad to hear his waiter passing from table to table converging easily in German table to table conversing easily in German, French, Italian and English.

Weather Changed.

It had been raining steadily, and the four-year-old had resigned himself to looking out the window. Suddenly out came the sun, "Well," exclaimed out came the sun, "Well," he, "there's the sun! Is caution?"—The Delineator.
